President's Message

Thank you for joining us tonight as we celebrate over twenty years of Asian American empowerment and community service.

Your support helps fund our Internship Program as well as CAPA's other leadership development and civic engagement programs. Through our efforts to cultivate the next generation of leaders, educate our community, and provide a voice for Asian Americans, we hope to pave the way for a future in which everyone can participate in the democratic process that makes this country so great and realize their part of the American Dream.

This would not be possible, however, without the efforts of those that came before us and upon whose shoulders we stand.

Chinese Americans have long been an important part of this country's history. Chinese Americans were instrumental in building the First Transcontinental Railroad. They were involved in landmark court cases that helped shape US constitutional law for years to come. The Supreme Court cases of Yick Wo v. Hopkins (1886) and US v. Wong Kim Ark (1898), both involving Chinese Americans living in San Francisco, led to pioneering interpretations of the Fourteenth ("Equal Protection") Amendment.

From 1910 to 1940, Chinese immigrants were detained on Angel Island, which we will learn more about tonight from the Intern Class of 2005. The Chinese were the first group to be targeted for a federal immigration ban in the Chinese Exclusion Act of 1882. Although the law was later repealed, the United States Code today still refers to the "Exclusion of Chinese," the only chapter in Title 8 that singles out a specific ethnic or nationality group.

Although we no longer live in a time when shopkeepers hang signs that read "No Dogs or Chinese" in their windows, there is still much work to be done to fully empower all segments of our society. By being here tonight, you are helping to lay the foundation for what will be a strong and vibrant community. You are paving the way, not just for tomorrow but for generations to come.

For that, we at CAPA want to thank you and offer our most heartfelt appreciation for your contributions and support.

Gala 2005 Chair's Message

Dear Friends,

I would like to welcome all of you to our annual Spring Gala. As we celebrate our heritage as Asian Pacific Americans this month, we developed our theme around history and a look to our future. CAPA and CAPA Community Education Fund has always looked to the future by supporting our "crown jewel", the summer internship program. A great program that gives an opportunity for our young people to experience how our government works and perhaps give new insight in what they want to do in the future. At the same time, we also honor our past by looking at our history. All people of our great land come from one point or another around the world. For many Asian Americans, and especially Chinese Americans, Angel Island represents that first step onto American soil similar to the many early European immigrants regard Ellis Island as their first step on our shores.

However, the experiences are different and our interns, the Class of 2005 will showcase that this evening.

Furthermore, I hope that you will participate in the many activities that's happening right now during this important event. Our committee has worked many months gathering the elements together to make this evening enjoyable. Part of that experience is the silent auction and the raffle draw. We have many great prizes and gifts that are waiting to be handed to the highest bidder. Item range from all spectrums and I'm sure that there are items that will catch your eye (and perhaps take home if you win!) And don't forget, the interns will be around during dinner selling raffle tickets. All proceeds goes to support CAPA Community Education Fund activities including our internship program as well as other programs promoting Asian American participation in public affairs.

Again, welcome to our annual Spring Gala. I hope you will enjoy the evening and hope to see you at future functions. Thank you.

Dear CAPA Friends:

Words cannot express how tremendous an honor it is for me to extend my warmest congratulations and best wishes to CAPA for its many years of community service, public education and political action.

As a Board Member of CAPA – and proud husband of the Board President – I have had the unique opportunity to view the inner workings of an organization that has provided more than two decades of public service to both the Chinese American community and the public at-large.

I am humbled by the hard work and dedication of CAPA members who have consistently fought for greater representation of Chinese Americans in the political arena and have sponsored countless educational forums, election-year debates and summer internships for our youth.

As a newly elected member of the Board of Education for the West Contra Costa Unified School District, I want to commend CAPA and the many supportive elected officials who have continued to provide valuable internship opportunities for our youth. This critical exposure to politics and public service will provide a launching pad for our current class of interns, and I firmly believe that this hands-on learning is the key for students to make the connection to the “real world” and incorporate such lessons for a lifetime.

Again, thanks to CAPA for its support of the community, its passion for justice and its deep commitment to the next generation. And thank you to all of the friends of CAPA who keep this critical work alive!

All the best,

A profound leader for his community, Malcolm X once told us that 'the future belongs to those who prepare for it today.' CAPA Community Education Fund has continually helped young leaders, entrepreneurs, and scholars prepare for their future, and I am no exception. As a former intern, I have had the privilege of participating in CAPA's noble endeavors and have been asked to serve as a mistress of ceremonies for this year's Gala.

After graduating from Monte Vista High School come June, I will enter the University of California, Berkeley come fall. At Berkeley, I will pursue my passion for international relations and political science. CAPA has taught me leadership through service, not self-promotion and as I continue to grow I hope to unlearn the world's pattern with its stress on status and privilege.

It has been a pleasure working with CAPA and I look forward to contributing more towards the organization whose goal is to increase political involvement and achievement within the Asian-American community. Thank you for all of your support and investment in the future.

First some history. It was a long love affair with coffee that led Jeremiah Pick to the specialty coffee business 18 years ago. Then in 1993 he started our company, a business dedicated to providing the finest coffees to supermarkets, restaurants and natural food stores. Jeremiah is acknowledged as an industry pioneer; the first visionary to bring gourmet coffee to the grocery aisle. Our company is now 11 years young and going strong.

What sets our coffees and our company apart? A simple concept: "Right Roast. Right Taste." Starting with the finest green coffee beans, selected by Jeremiah, each small batch is hand-roasted and married carefully to the right color profile to highlight the nuances of each coffee's origin and varietal character. The design of our whole drum roaster insures that no flame ever contacts the beans during roasting, creating consistent and superior flavor profiles. And the result? You taste the bean, not the burn.

We work with socially and environmentally responsible family farms and cooperatives and visit them regularly. By establishing long-term relationships for the supply of exceptional green beans at prices that support investments in land and people, we insure quality, consistency and integrity. For more information please visit jeremiahspick.com or call us at 877-JEREMIAH (537-3642). We look forward to serving you and your customers.

■ Look to Three Brothers From China for dishes piled high with delicious entrees

By Nicholas Boer
TIMES CORRESPONDENT

I knew Three Brothers From China was going to be good the moment we walked in the door. It was early on a Sunday night and both of the medium-sized dining rooms were already full.

As we were led to our table, we passed large and small family groups happily chatting and eating from plates piled high with seafood. The servers moved with a purpose, giving the dining room a sense of ordered chaos — like the energy of a busy street corner.

The three brothers from China — Steve, Allan and Ivan Li — have been in the United States for some 10 years. Their Pleasant Hill restaurant has been open since 1992; they opened another in San Ramon in 1994, and, by the look of the crowds, the Valley could easily support another.

The decor in the Pleasant Hill restaurant is uncluttered and well-worn. There are bright pink napkins, some large and small paintings and a quiet bar area, but the real focus is on the food — evidenced by the

But the generous portion of plump scallops, fork-tender bok choy and exotic mushrooms made it both unique and outstanding.

The table becomes crowded quickly, so be sure to save a space near you for the dry sautéed prawns — they are truly remarkable. Completely greaseless, encased in what seems like an impossibly thin tempura batter, the medium-sized shrimp arrive in their shell with the head on. The shrimp are so fresh and delicate that the entire thing is edible.

As the courses continued to arrive, we began to feel like royalty at a wedding banquet.

There was a quick and furious stir-fry of peppers, onions and meaty beef strips. A liberal dose of black pepper made this dish particularly well-suited to steamed rice.

A whole cracked crab was next, cooked live and coated in a light sauce infused with ginger and scallions. Much of the fun of this meal came from so many dishes that are cooked whole and allow you to eat with your hands. Licking your fingers and searching for hidden jewels creates a feeling of relaxed celebration.

Peking-style pork comes on the bone in the form of tender braised thin chops. They eat like Chinese bank of live crabs and lobsters built into a back wall.

There are two menus: a large plastic-coated one with more than 100 traditional-style dishes, and a smaller (only 60 choices) one that emphasizes seafood, steamed dishes and simple combinations. Both menus offer complete dinners, but the smaller one has three truly unusual dinners composed of eight or nine courses for one set price ($48, $68, $98). We ordered the seafood-laden $68 menu and, while it took some time to get started, dinner soon moved into high gear.

The first course brought a gigantic terrine of soup loaded with imitation crab, silken tofu, green onions and beef tripe. Even after the five of us had second cups, there was still nearly a quart of the sesame-infused soup to take home.

The next course of braised scallops and baby bok choy was, with its lightly sweetened, cornstarch-thickened sauce, the closest dish to typical American-Chinese food we had.

spareribs, with a sauce that is sweet but not cloying.

A large half-chicken is also served on the bone: It's crisply deep-fried and cut into manageable-sized pieces. The deep-frying keeps the flesh steamy-moist, and a side dish of sea salt and pepper lets you season it on the spot, bringing out the poultry's true flavor.

The brothers travel to San Francisco's Chinatown (so you don't have to) almost every day, where they purchase all their produce, meat and seafood. That explains how they can offer both high quality and quantity at such reasonable prices.

The final savory course was also the flashiest: a whole deep-fried codfish. There was more bone than meat, but the flesh was sweet, moist and flavorful from a light sauce perfumed with cilantro and ginger.

The restaurants' success is partly due to the brothers' willingness to listen. Steve and Allan work the front of the house, talk to the customers and use the feedback to refine their recipes.

If the myriad choices aren't adequate, they are happy to cook it your way — whatever way that may be. Ivan, who is the oldest, oversees the kitchen and demonstrates both talent and commitment.

It was hard for me to get excited about dessert — a warm, gray and intensely sweet tapioca soup — but by that point even a fortune cookie looked intimidating.

It may have taken me too long to find this restaurant, but I'm already scheming to make up for lost time.
